

This signed Iradj Moini 2 3/4" long giant beetle insect brooch with yellow marble glass cabochons and diamante rhinestones was pictured in Carole Tanenbaum's 2006 book, Fabulous Fakes: A Passion for Vintage Costume Jewelry, on page 191, in the chapter titled "The Eighties and Nineties (1980-1999), Garish, Minimal, Severe." It sold for $812.50 (est. $600/800).

This Robert Sorrell scalloped amber, orange, and diamante crystal collar necklace sold for $750 (est. $600/800).

This signed Margot De Taxco Mexican Modernist sterling silver snake link necklace with green enamel scales, 4" diameter, sold for $1000 (est. $800/1200).

Carole Tanenbaum's collection included a group of Bakelite items. The group of 1930s-40s Bakelite painted animal figural brooches by Martha Sleeper, including Thumper, Bambi, and a flying horse, 3" high, sold for $550 (est. $550/750).

This rare signed De Mario Egyptian Revival festooned necklace, with a molded glass pharaoh head in a relief gilt filigree medallion and dangling Czech art glass blue and green beads, sold for $812.50 (est. $550/750).

Carole Tanenbaum's collection included vintage Scottish items. This Scottish Victorian sterling silver, inlaid multi-agate, flat-link bracelet, the center layered with an open swirl decoration, with a 2 1/4" cuff width, brought $812.50 (est. $550/650).

This 1940s Chanel 16" long necklace designed by Rousselet, with ruby-red poured glass and multi-pearl floral clusters having giant baroque pearl centers and seed pearl accents, realized $750 (est. $300/500).

This 1940s signed Hobé white chinoiserie figural Orientalist brooch, 2 1/4" high x 1 1/2" wide, with a carved Japanese netsuke and multi-crystal filigree halo, brought $531.25 (est. $200/300).

This 1940s group of three Trifari brooches, including a key, a Moghul moth/butterfly, and a jeweled hand with a diamante cuff, sold for $1375 (est. $600/700).

This diamante crystal collar necklace, with pink glass cabochons and marquises surrounding a drop pendant, is signed for Thorin & Co. and designer Timothy Szlyk. It sold for $1875 (est. $500/700).